Vintage script font reminding of sign painting.

Coco FY is a vintage script font reminding of storefronts sign paintings, and other hand-lettered street signs. With its high contrasts and its condensed forms, Coco FY will give an original retro style to your designs. This font will certainly find its pleasure on posters, packaging and branding.

The letters 'N' and 'n' are rendered in a highly expressive, brush-stroke style. The 'N' has a thick, dark vertical stem and a curved top that tapers into a thin, sweeping stroke. The 'n' is similarly thick and curved, with a soft, rounded bottom.

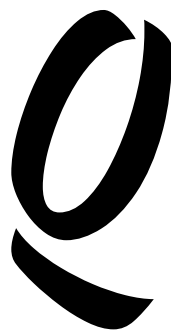

Brush-made look

The Euro symbol (€) is depicted with a thick, hand-painted appearance. The strokes are bold and slightly irregular, with visible texture and a sense of movement, characteristic of sign painting.

Sign painting style

The letter 'H' is shown with a very high-contrast, expressive style. The vertical stems are thick and dark, while the horizontal crossbar is thin and slightly curved, creating a dramatic visual effect.

Expressive high contrast

The letter 'Q' is rendered with a thick, dark stroke that appears to be interrupted or broken at the top, giving it a dynamic, almost calligraphic feel. The tail of the letter is also thick and curved.

Interrupted construction

The numerals '3' and '5' are shown in a thick, rounded, and slightly irregular style. The '3' has a curved top and a thick middle bar, while the '5' is bold and has a slightly curved bottom.

Tasty numerals

The letter 'A' is depicted with a thick, dark stroke that features a prominent knot or loop at the top, giving it a unique and expressive character.
